Dear Dave,

Let us forget everything else.

On the Dillard picture: I am now too busy to do anything with it. When I'm next at the Archives I'll try and learn the answers to your questions about whether they used one negative or made new negatives for each picture. The FBI did the work and I doubt if anyone else knows. In no case that I know of did they intend good photography.

My suggestion would be that you write Dillard frankly and ask him to provide the enlargement from his negative. I'm sure, from other cases, that he has it, having provided a print of each picture. If he finds what you think and uses it, we are all better off for it.

Thanks for the offer. If I get a chance to go further, I will examine the Archives copy of the print with an engravers lense, which gives about 10x magnification

Sincerely,
